P R E F A C E

As a memorial to the loving memory of Hezekiah V. Miller, his wife Susan Beauhop Miller, and their immediate family, this book is dedicated by descendants for perpetuation purposes.

The historical and biographical sketches were furnished and written by C. Melvin Shatzer, while the information contained in the genealogical portions of the narrative was accumulated and compiled, after considerable effort, by Charles W. Eckenrode.

Inaccuracies may be noted in some of the facts contained therein as to names, dates, etc., which are indeed regrettable; however, those responsible for the book's publication are deeply indebted and greatly appreciative for the cooperation and interest manifested by those interviewed.

HISTORICAL REMINISCENCES.

The territory known as the Cumberland Valley, at the beginning of colonization by the white race, was virtually in possession of an aggregation of tribes of Indians, known as the Six Nations, comprising the Mohawks, Onondagas, Cuyugas, Oneidas, Senecas and the Tuscaroras (called by the French Iroquois). At that time the valley appears to have been a vast uninhabited highway, through which hordes of hostile savages were constantly roaming between the northern and southern waters, and where they often met in bloody encounters.

Due to its being considered good hunting grounds, the claim of the Six Nations was disputed by the Lenni Lenape, another powerful confederacy, who claimed that they were the original people, as their name implies. The Indians comprising this confederacy were known to the white settlers as the Delawares. They were divided into three principal tribes, Turtle, Turkeys and Monseys or Wolf tribes.

The tranquility of the land was marred by the disagreements existing between these two confederations as to possession or proprietary rights to the territory thereby changing it from one of peace to a bloody battleground, and for this reason none of the tribes in both confederacies made permanent settlement in its forests, and accounts for the absence of Indian relics so numerous in certain western and southern localities.

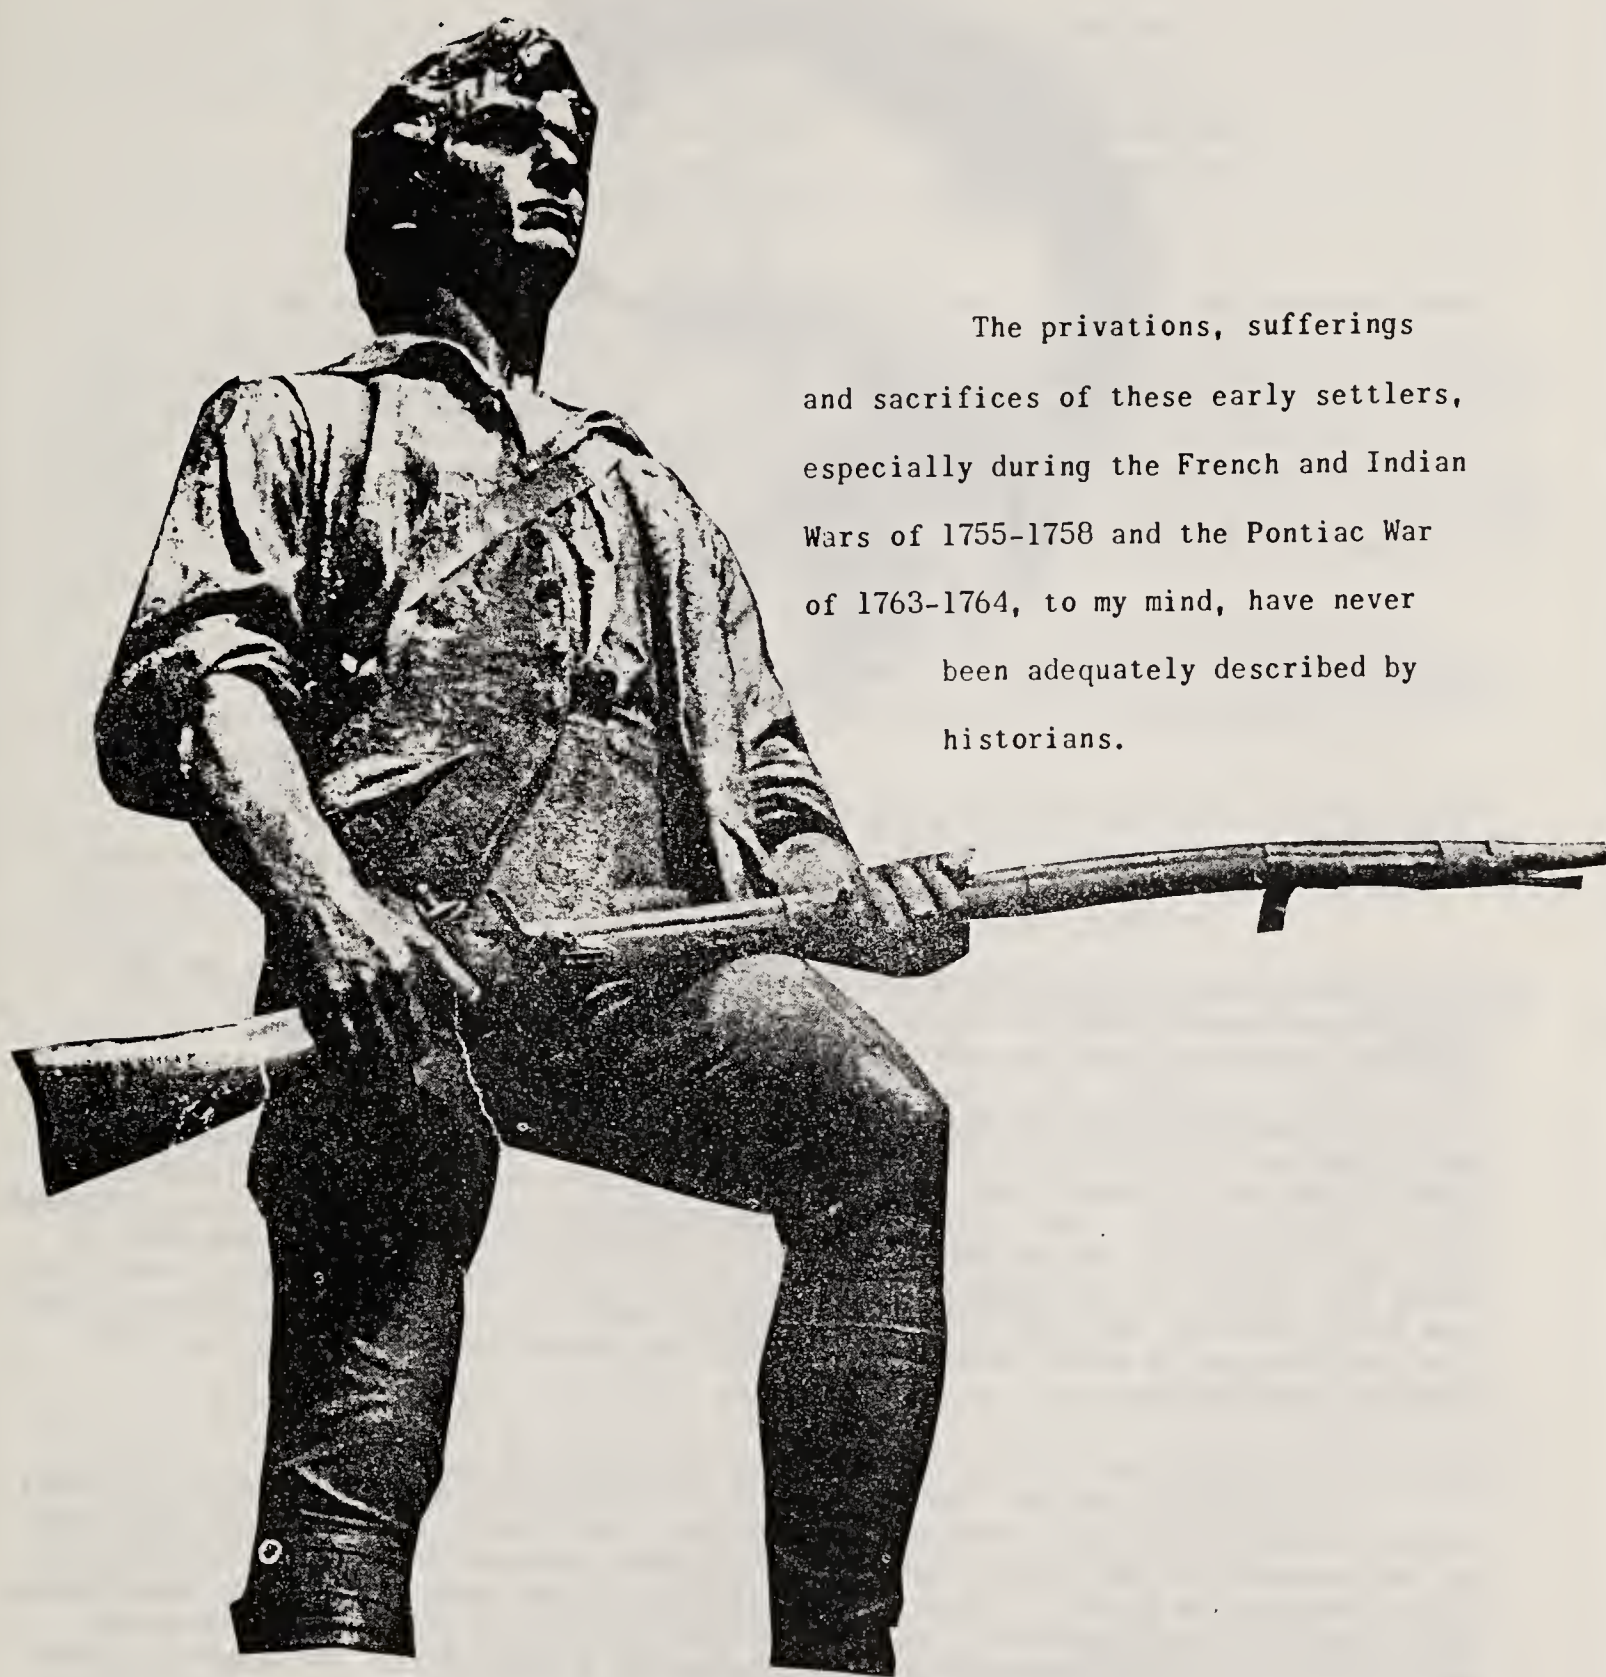

As early as 1730 the Scotch Irish penetrated the then savage wilderness of the valley, traveling presumably along one of the hazardous Indian trails, as far as Shippensburg where a settlement was effected; later in 1734 they settled under Benjamin Chambers at the confluence of the Falling Spring and the Conococheague Creek and erected a fort thereat known as Chambers Fort. Later other settlements were made throughout the territory.

These Scotch Irish, with the persistence and courage of their race, held this line of civilization in the struggle to subdue new land amid the alarms, horrors and disasters of wars that spared neither the mother nor the babe in arms.

Following the first settlements by the Scotch Irish, numerous Germans migrated into this section and acquired land for farming purposes.

When the little bands of emigrants came westward to the Cumberland Valley seeking the privilege to worship God as they chose and to have the opportunity of earning a living, they brought with them a courage coupled with industry, which has been characteristic of their descendants to this day.

The importance of the influence of the Scotch Irish in winning this once trackless wilderness from savagery and barbarism should be heralded as an act of heroism that cannot be denied or perhaps equalled. The hardships they had to endure; the sufferings they were called upon to bear; the heroic endeavor they had to put forth, and the romances that were clustered about the days when the blue ranges of these mountains were filled with ever present, lurking dangers, and the tide of Anglo-Saxon civilization was just commencing to lap the foothills of this almost unknown country, cannot be fully comprehended.

The privations, sufferings and sacrifices of these early settlers, especially during the French and Indian Wars of 1755-1758 and the Pontiac War of 1763-1764, to my mind, have never been adequately described by historians.

FRENCH AND INDIAN WARS 1755-1758

A N D

PONTIAC WAR 1763-1764

It was during the French and Indian Wars 1755-1758 and the Pontiac War of 1763-1764 that the Conococheague settlement was subjected to many Indian forays and atrocities. To guard against these Indian intrusions and as a place of refuge for the pioneers who settled in that section of the Cumberland Valley along the eastern wall of the Tuscaroras in the southwestern part of Franklin County, Fort McDowell (now Markes) and Fort Loudon (which retains the original name), as well as other forts, were erected to serve as military outposts and for the protection of the civilian population in times of danger.

INDIAN BRAVE

As this narrative is written in connection with the genealogy of the Miller family who lived in this particular section, some of the atrocities committed by Indians in this vicinity are hereby related.

From observation it appears the most cruel and horrifying experiences of the white settlers living in the Conococheague district was in the year 1756 when they were subjected to inhuman and unbelievable atrocities committed by the French and their Indian allies. Their forays began early and continued almost constantly throughout that year for it was on February 11, 1756 that Indians appeared at the home of Widow Cox located at the base of Parnell's Knob, and carried into captivity or killed two boys. Another lad, who had left McDowell's Mills on the same date, evidently met the same fate as he never returned. However, his horse did return with the reins hanging over his neck.

Fort McCord was the scene of one of the most bloody massacres during Colonial times in this county when twenty-seven settlers, men, women, and children, met death by the tomahawk of the savage red men in the great struggle for the civilization of this continent on April 1, 1756. In the list of victims were James Blair, Mary McCord, Mrs. John Thorn and babe, Mrs. Ann McCord, wife of John McCord, and two daughters, Martha Thorn, a young mother with unborn babe, and a young girl. The names of those not mentioned in the list are not known.

Twenty-one Provincial soldiers were killed while in pursuit of the Indians at Sideling Hill. They were -

Captain Alexander Culbertson	Robert Kerr
Ensign John Reynolds	William Chambers
William Kerr	Daniel McCoy
James Blair	James Robinson (Tailor)
John Layson	James Robinson (Weaver)
William Denny	James Peace
Francis Scott	John Bear
William Boyd	Henry Jones

Jacob Jones	John Kelly

WOUNDED

Lieut. Jameson	Isaac Miller
Abraham Jones	John McDonald
Francis Campbell	William Hunter
William Reynolds	Matthias Ganshorn
John Barnet	William Swailes
Benjamin Blyth

It was on July 26, 1756 that Joseph Martin was killed by Indians who penetrated the Conococheague settlement near Fort McDowell. On the same day two boys, John aged 8, and James aged 5, (sons of James McCullough), were carried into captivity by five Indians and one Frenchman. The boys, having been warned by a neighbor, John Allen, that savages were prowling around the neighborhood, were attempting to warn their parents and a sister working in a field nearby pulling flax, when they were suddenly leaped upon by their captors. The father, mother, and two sisters, were successful in making their escape. The captives were taken to the forks of the Ohio by their assailants.

The following month the inhabitants of the Conococheague settlement again suffered from marauding Indians for it is said that on August 27th a great slaughter took place wherein the invaders killed thirty-nine persons near the mouth of the Conococheague Creek.

Some time about the middle of October of that year marauding savages again appeared in Great and Little Coves and perpetrated the heinous offense of completely destroying both coves, killing settlers, horses, cattle, and burning all homes. Out of ninety-three settlers, fifty-seven were killed or taken captive.

Early in November a detail of soldiers from the garrison at Fort McDowell was sent out to search for Samuel Perry and his two sons. On their return to the fort they found Perry who was scalped and covered with leaves. The sons were evidently carried into captivity for no trace of them was found. The Indians, however, discovered the soldiers a few miles from their headquarters, ambushed them, killed and scalped the following -

Privates James McDonald
William McDonald
Bartholemew McGafferty
Anthony McQuoid

Captain James Corkin and Private William Cornwall were carried into captivity.

In addition, the following inhabitants met death at the hands of the savages -

John Culbertson
Samuel Perry
Hugh Kerrel
John Woods
Mother-in-law of John Woods
(Name unknown)
Elizabeth Archer

The four children of John Archer and two lads named Samuel Neily and James McQuoid were compelled to accompany the murderers.

During the Pontiac War of 1763-1764 Indians again appeared in the valley. On July 25, 1764 Susan King Cunningham left her home near Fort Loudon and started through the woods to visit a neighbor. When she did not return to her home, a search was made and her body was found near her home. She had been scalped. Not being satisfied with her murder, the fiends performed a Caesarian operation and placed her child on the ground beside her. The next day, July 26th, schoolmaster Enoch Brown and ten of his pupils were murdered and scalped. However, one of the pupils, Archibald McCullough, who had been scalped and left for dead with his other schoolmates, recovered and lived for many years. This massacre occurred about three miles north of Greencastle. The crime was committed by three young braves.

The period immediately following the close of the Pontiac War was one of comparative peace, but this did not long continue. The people, who had been driven from their homes, gradually returned with a determination to make a more resolute stand against future harassment, accordingly a company of riflemen was recruited and James Smith elected captain. To confuse the enemy they dressed in Indian fashion, painting their faces red and black.

The men became very adept in Indian warfare as they were drilled in Indian discipline by two elected officers who had been in captivity, the one being Captain Smith.

Shipments of merchandise intended for distribution as presents to the Indians at Fort Pitt began moving from Philadelphia through the valley. This angered the inhabitants as they so vividly remembered the hardships they encountered in the recent wars with the Indians, and were determined not to permit these shipments of merchandise to reach their intended destinations. Therefore, the people of Cumberland County, of which Franklin County was a part, took the law into their own hands to prevent warlike stores being supplied to savages recently in arms against them.

When the merchandise was delivered to Henry Pollens at Conococheague, he contracted to deliver it to Fort Pitt by pack train, numbering eighty-one horses.

This transaction alarmed the country to such a degree that William Duffield raised and armed about fifty men of the trained men of the valley and marched to Fort Loudon, where he requested that the goods be stored until further notice. The order was refused, and on March 6, 1765, the pack train proceeded westward, in charge of Bob Callendar.

On that same morning a large company of men started from the house of William Smith, who was one of the justices of Cumberland County, but living near Fort Loudon. At Sideling Hill the pack train was overtaken and sixty-three of the horse loads were burned or pillaged.

A sergeant and twelve men of the Highlanders stationed at Fort Loudon were sent from the fort and saved the balance of the goods and captured several persons. Five rifles and four smooth bore guns were also taken.

After losing their caravan, the traders returned to the fort to make a complaint to the commanding officer. Three hundred riflemen then marched to Fort Loudon to strengthen the garrison. They encamped on a hill overlooking the fort.

James Smith, a relative of Justice William Smith, and the captain of the company of riflemen trained to fight in Indian fashion, appeared in a few days at the head of a large crowd of his infuriated neighbors, and declared they would suffer death to the last man, rather than let the prisoners be put to jail at Carlisle.

Another caravan of horses laden with liquors, etc. for the troops at Fort Pitt arrived at Fort Loudon about two months later. The packs were taken from the backs of the horses and placed in the fort. The drivers led their horses out to pasture when about thirty men, with their faces painted black, rushed upon them, flogged the drivers, killed five horses and burned all the saddles. In the battle which ensued, one of the attacking party was wounded.

Again Captain Smith led his neighbors to the fort. He was accompanied by three Justices who demanded the right to search the goods stored in the fort, but intended for transportation to Fort Pitt. This right was denied by Lieutenant Charles Grant of the Highlanders.

On May 28, 1765 Lieutenant Grant, while riding about a mile from the fort, was fired upon. His horse started suddenly at the crack of the rifle and he was thrown off. Captain James Smith and others seized him, carried him six miles distant and kept him a prisoner all night in the woods. While a prisoner he was threatened with bodily harm unless he agreed to give up all the arms taken from the rioters.

The actions taken by Captain Smith against the traders, in conjunction with his "Black Boys", resulted in very few pack trains passing through the valley.

As the inhabitants became more numerous throughout the valley it was necessary that roads be provided for the transportation, in conestoga wagons, of merchandise and other commodities from Philadelphia and Baltimore to Bedford, Pittsburgh, and other western destinations.

A streak of road, deeply rutted from use, could be seen twisting away through the wilderness meandering across glen and dale, glade and thicket, leading ultimately to the long wall of the Tuscarora range of mountains, with its riot of peaks, towering before them to the westward.

In 1755 the province agreed to open a wagon road from Fort Loudon to the forks of the Youghiogheny. The road passed beyond McDowell's Mills around Parnell's and Jordan's Knobs into Path Valley, into Cowan's Gap, passing Burnt Cabins and Sugar Cabins to Sideling Hill. From the latter point the road extended to the crossing of the Juniata, thence to Raystown (now Bedford) and then over the Alleghanies.

To accommodate the drivers of these conestoga wagons and their horses after long, tedious and toilsome trips, inns were built and scattered along the road at distances considered a good day's journey. Perhaps only at these inns - in a wild and rolling landscape - could human activity be heard and seen, with neighing of horses and loud shouts of command addressed to man and beast, the sound of which echoed and re-echoed in ironical confusion.

The Millers constitute a very numerous family, widely prevalent in the United States.

In the great migration of Germans to the Americas in the first half and mid-eighteenth century, numerous ancestors of the Miller clan were included. However, comprehensive search of the geneological records at the Pennsylvania State Capital, Harrisburg, failed to definitely establish the original progenitor of the descendants of Henry Miller, the father of Hezekiah. Local records also do not reveal the ancestor of Henry's father, thus making it almost impossible to trace the line of heredity after arrival in America in records thus far discovered.

From the port of entry some immigrants bearing the name Miller came to Pennsylvania and followed the Scotch-Irish in colonizing the Conococheague district of Cumberland County. As early as 1756 the Millers lived in the Cumberland Valley and Bedford regions, as Isaac Miller was one of the wounded men who took part in a battle with Indians at Sideling Hill while a company of soldiers was pursuing them after the massacre at Fort McCord on April 1, 1756.

According to Peter Williamson's account of his captivity by Indians, Jacob Miller and his entire family of seven were murdered by savages during a foray made upon settlers of the Conococheague region by Delaware Indians in the summer of 1756. They lived in what was known as the upper valley - no doubt Path Valley.

According to information obtained by Charles W. Eckenrode in his numerous and varied contacts and investigations, Henry Miller purchased from William Logan on March 25, 1853, some land in Peters Township at Stitzels Crossroads, one-half of which was conveyed to Henry L. Miller, who later conveyed said land to Peter Palsgrove December 26, 1857. Where he lived prior to this time is problematical.

Henry Miller, who married a Rinehart (first or maiden name unknown) from Carroll County, Maryland, died during the year 1860. However, no trace can be found where he is buried (possibly in a nearby graveyard and the site of burial unmarked).

Among his survivors was a son, Hezekiah, who was born February 18, 1823. The place of his birth could not be definitely established. However, since his father married a maiden f n Carroll County of the state of Maryland, a figment of imagination would lead to the fact that presumably they went to housekeeping in that County, where they raised their family.

After bridging a span of years they evidently moved, at a later date, to the southwestern part of Franklin County, State of Pennsylvania, in the Fort Loudon, Markes, Lemasters, Mercersburg area, at least four years before Henry purchased the Stitzel Crossroads property, inasmuch as Hezekiah met and wooed Susan Beauhop, a young maiden working at an inn (one of the inns to which reference is made previously in this narrative) located just west of Saint Thomas, or approximately midway between that place and Fort Loudon, in the year 1849 when he was married.

(When the wagon was used as a means of transportation for commerce during the early days, especially for inland destinations, it has been said there were fifteen hotels and taverns between Chambersburg and Fort Loudon.)

After a brief acquaintance, they were married on December 24, 1849, (he 26, she 16 years old). They started housekeeping in a small house along the present Lincoln Highway, near the Garnet Gillan home, where a son, John, was born October 26, 1850.

On April 11, 1851, Hezekiah purchased from John H. Weaver and Fannie, his wife, in the village of present Edenville, six acres and ninety-seven perch of land, on which he built a house.

This place became his permanent homestead during the remainder of his life.

An adjoining tract of land, consisting of four acres one hundred twenty-two perch, was conveyed to him by purchase on March 31, 1855, by Jacob Weaver.

This became "the dearest spot on earth" to them inasmuch as it was here that all of their children were born, except John. There were good neighbors on all sides, and the children availed themselves of an opportunity presented by taking advantage of the educational media provided at a nearby school known as the Gelwick's school.

While his education was limited, as a youth he experienced a religious awakening which influenced his life ever afterward. From that time forth he was a member and active worker in the church.

When the Edenville United Brethren Church was first planned and organized, Hezekiah Miller, in conjunction with Isaac Foreman, Lewis M. Dice and William Byers, acted as trustees for the congregation in the purchase of a certain parcel of land from William Byers and his wife, Elizabeth, December 15, 1873. A church building was erected thereon during the year 1874, and records reveal it was built by Lewis and David Dice, Daniel Hartman, and D. Alfred Miller, the latter named being a son of Hezekiah. J. P. Anthony was the first pastor of the church serving in 1875-1876, and he also was the pastor in 1893-1894 when Hezekiah passed from this pathway of shadows into the clear shining of the eternal light March 26, 1893, aged seventy years. In memorium of his death, the following resolution was written and signed by J. P. Anthony and J. W. Gillan:

WHEREAS: In the Providence of the Great Head of the Church, who makes no mistakes and doeth all things well, Hezekiah Miller has been called from the Church Militant to the Church triumphant and

WHEREAS: He was for 40 of the 70 years of his life a devoted christian and nearly all this time a member of this church, living a good life and active in the Means of Grace and

WHEREAS: He was a member of this Quarterly Conference, being a Trustee of Edenville Church from its beginning until his death and also at times held the office of Class Leader, Steward and S. S. Superintendent.

THEREFORE RESOLVED:

- 1st - That we bow in humble submission to the will of our Heavenly Father in this bereavement,
- 2nd - That we recognize in Bro. Miller a faithful Christian, a worthy member of the Church, a devoted and true officer in the Church and member of this Quarterly Conference.
- 3rd - That we pray God to raise up others to take his place and help to promote the cause he loved so well.
- 4th - That a copy of these Resolutions be given to Sister Miller and we hereby assure her of our condolence and our prayers that she may be richly sustained by divine Grace.

He was a man of fine presence, strong personality, and sterling character. He was a fence builder by trade.

His widow, Susan, outlived him by twenty-one years. Both of them are buried in the cemetery adjoining the church which was so vital and meant so much to them during their lives.

Hezekiah had two brothers and three sisters - Jeremiah, Henry L., Louise, Harriet and Belle. His sister Louise married Peter Palsgrove. She took care of the father during an illness until his death.

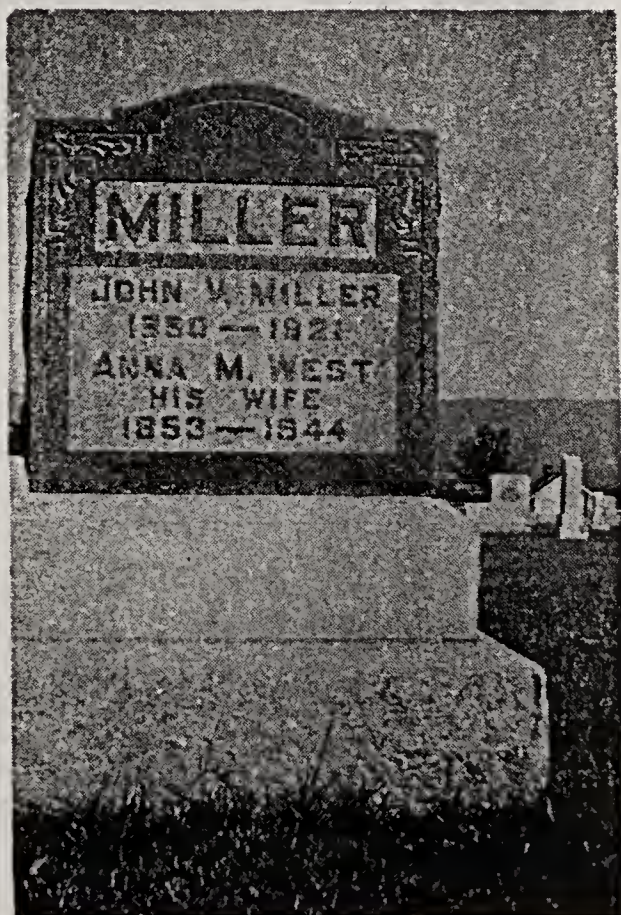

Hezekiah had an indefatigable determination to promote and advance good will religiously in his neighborhood and worked assiduously to that end.

With the narrative of Hezekiah and Susan Beauhop Miller, the biography account of the family is brought to a close. They reared a large family - eight boys and five girls, or a total of thirteen, eleven growing to manhood and womanhood (two dying in infancy), all of whom have passed to their eternal reward.

At a very early date Susan Beauhop, with her father, mother, brother, and two sisters from Berkeley Springs, W. Va., joined a part of the community that later became Edenville taking up residence in the vicinity of the old Stone schoolhouse, which school she attended in later years.

Facts relating to the Beauhop family and their activities are meager. How long they remained in that vicinity, which later became the permanent home of Susan, is not known. However, it is believed as the years passed the family changed their place of abode to a home along the present Apple Way, and were living there when Susan worked at the Gillan Inn.

Imagination can depict the young lassie, Susan, filled with poignancy and buoyancy of youth, trudging from her home to the Inn to perform the duties assigned to her.

Life at the place of her employment was not always quiet and drab, as frequently the rooms and halls were filled with gaiety and laughter as the drivers, engaged in the transportation of merchandise and other commodities for western destinations, would relate their varied experiences in a hilarious and jovial manner.

While thus employed she met Hezekiah Miller and was swept away with a sudden infatuation, which culminated, after a brief courtship, in marriage.

A brother, Daniel, married Eliza Shank to which union were born seven children. Sisters Harriet and Katie married William Callahan and John Bartels respectively. After their marriage, the brother with his wife, and two sisters with their husbands, returned to their native state of West Virginia.

A comprehensive search revealed that the Beauhop family is practically non-existent, Mrs. Myrtle Feight, of Berkeley Springs, Route 1, W. Va., a daughter of Daniel, being the only living descendant.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES AND FAMILY GENEALOGIES.

John V. Miller, eldest son of Hezekiah and Susan, born October 26, 1850, after attending Gelwick's school, learned the trade of fence building by apprenticeship under his father. While his time was not entirely consumed in fence construction he availed himself of the opportunity of doing other odd jobs among the farmers in the community.

As he grew into manhood he demonstrated that he possessed the abilities of not only being a good fence builder but of making an excellent farmer which later placed him in the front ranks among those engaged in farming. The various investments that he made proved more profitable than anticipated by having a clear perception of their future value.

On August 17, 1871, he married Anna Mary West, the second of nine children born to Captain Jacob and Mary (Bryan) West. Her father, having a strong military spirit, served in both the Mexican and Civil Wars and participated in a number of great battles fought between the Blue and the Gray.

He enlisted, at the age of twenty-three, in Company C of the 10th U. S. Infantry under the command of Captain Martin M. Moore for service in the Mexican War, and departed from Chambersburg March 17, 1847. At Pittsburgh his Company received additional recruits. They reached Brasos Santiago April 17, 1847, garrisoning at Tampico. From there they proceeded to Vera Cruz on their way to Mexico City. However, they did not reach that city as a declaration of peace was signed February 2, 1848. After being mustered out of service, he returned to his home in Saint Thomas.

When the war broke out between the States he immediately enlisted and served throughout the war in various capacities, fighting in such battles as Shiloh, Battle Creek, siege of Corinth, and was mustered out of service at Lynchburg, Virginia, July 8, 1865. While in a southern camp he was lamed by lightning striking him during a storm. His sword saved his life by conducting the current away from his body. His sword, with the point melted by the electric fluid, was one of his precious relics. He had four honorable discharges from army service over a period of six years.

John and Mary started housekeeping in the tenant house on the Houser farm, - this house being located near the north corner of the present Hutton fruit farm (formerly known as the Mull place) bordering the Apple Way south of Morning Glory school house.

Their first child, Alice, was born at this place, and while living here John ventured into real estate by purchasing a tract of land containing ninety-five perch from his father, Hezekiah, on which he built the house now owned and occupied by Clifford Snyder. They lived here until the Spring of 1879, when they moved to a new location along the middle road leading to the Walker school.

On April 1, 1879, he purchased fourteen acres one hundred perch of land from D. S. Hunter and erected a house thereon. At that early period in the construction of houses, to facilitate occupancy, it was the general practice to erect the kitchen portion to provide living accommodations, then finish the other portion when convenient and finances were available. This practice was followed by John in the erection of his house.

During the twenty-nine years they lived on this property they were blessed with six of their ten children. In addition to doing some fence building, he was engaged in farming the premises.

After selling the property to C. Edward Baker in March 1908, he moved with his family to a farm near Croddlestown, where he remained one year, then purchasing a farm at the intersection of the Loudon Road and Long Lane moved thereto. In 1915 he retired from farming and this property was sold to his son, Herbert.

Following his retirement, he purchased a home in St. Thomas to which he moved, living in that village until his death in 1921. He was 71 years of age. His widow continued to live there for approximately one year when the home was sold to Fred Patterson, and is now occupied by him and his family.

Mrs. Miller spent the remaining period of her life, approximately twenty-two years, with her children, - a large portion of which was with a son, Jacob Harvey, where she died in 1944 at the age of 91 years.

They were members of the United Brethren Church at Edenville for quite a long period of years. However, a number of years before her death she joined the Old Order of River Brethren. This prominent couple is buried in the St. Thomas cemetery.

They were the parents of ten children - Alice, Elmer, Mary Elizabeth, Martin Luther, Jacob Harvey, Cora, Lila, Bessie, Herbert and Ralph.

W. Henry Miller, second son and first at the new residence, of the Hezekiah Millers, was born November 3, 1852. He joined his brother, John, in attending the neighborhood school where he was taught to read, write, add and parse, but not long enough under a teacher to learn much else from books.

Henry shouldered the burdens of active life with no advantages but sound health and courage. At a very early age he performed various odd jobs in the community. The school in which he learned the most in early life was the trade of a carpenter which he followed.

Seeking employment, he became a member of a carpenter crew with "Abe" Thomas, who employed quite a number of men as he was engaged in general carpentry, building houses, barns, sheds, and making general repairs to buildings. In this capacity he became widely known throughout the entire county. He was a good carpenter and always did his work to the best of his ability, being an energetic and capable man.

He also associated himself with "Mose" Hartman as a member of his carpenter gang during the boom days at Franklin Furnace on which payroll his name appeared. While there he performed various services, one of which was butchering as it became his lot to prepare meat for the "Company Store", where, if not all the inhabitants around Edenville, at least the Furnace employees did their buying during the period of operation.

On December 12, 1872, he married Mary Brubaker, one of seven children of Mr. and Mrs. Christian Brubaker. Mr. Brubaker was a shoemaker and leather workman, living at the present Edgar Dietrich home.

At the time Henry and Mary were first married they occupied a house, part of the Furnace property, located on the present foundation of the one now owned by Clarence Foreman.

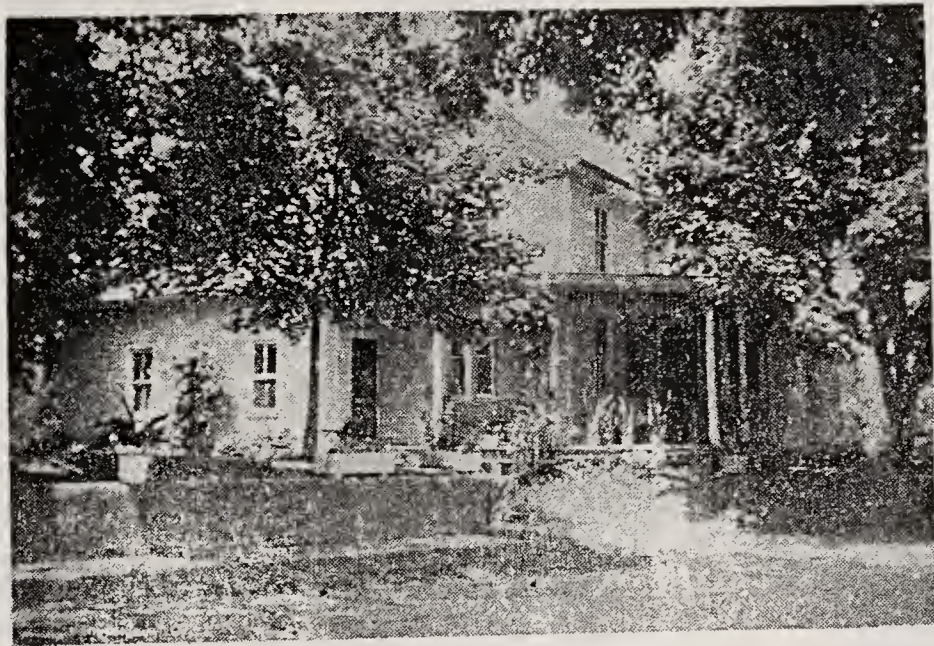

In 1875 he and his brother-in-law, Aaron Shatzer, built what is known as the "Taylor home", (now owned and occupied by Lloyd Amsley) where they lived together for several years, moving later to the house vacated by his brother John, at present owned and occupied by Clifford Snyder, removing therefrom sometime later to a house near Cline's Spring. While living at this house, he purchased a tract of land, approximately one-fourth acre, from his father Hezekiah, on April 1, 1887, where he built the kitchen portion of the house, finishing the remainder sometime later while occupying the smaller portion.

Seven of their nine children were born before settling in their own home.

Henry, at the age of 52, died here in 1904. His widow lived in the home until 1915 when she joined her husband in death at the age of 61 years.

After her passing, the property was purchased by a son, George B., and then in 1918 it became, by purchase, the home of Lula and her husband George W. Eckenrode, who occupied it until her death in February 1955, when it was again sold to the present owner, H. Ray Shatzer.

They were the parents of nine children, Charles, Lula, John W., William, Mary, George, Harry, Iva and Nora, members of the Edenville United Brethren Church, and are buried in the cemetery adjoining the church.

D. Alfred, third son of the Millers, was born September 25, 1854. He received a fair education at the public schools having joined his other brothers in attending the village school, Gelwicks, where he too learned the fundamentals in education the essential three "R's" so necessary to achieve a worthy success in life.

Following in the footsteps of his brother, Henry, he became a carpenter by trade associating himself with "Abe" Thomas, a building contractor. Through his connection with Mr. Thomas he traveled over a large area of Franklin County, performing the work assigned to him in a very satisfactory and commendable manner.

On March 9, 1876 he married Elizabeth Shatzer, daughter of Joseph Shatzer who was living at the present R. G. Diffenderfer home. She was one of a family of ten children.

The place where they actually started housekeeping could not be ascertained, however, they did live in the upstairs portion of the house built by his brother, John, (now the Clifford Snyder home), and it may be they commenced keeping house at this place. The next place of abode was the present William Kissel home, previously purchased from Henry Gushert April 9, 1885. Following the general custom in those days the kitchen portion of the house was first erected, then the other portion of the house was built while living there.

During the Spring of 1890 he purchased the home built by Emanuel Shatzer, to which he moved. The family resided here the remainder of the parents' lives.

In 1923, when the Edenville U. B. Church was remodeled, a board was discovered bearing the names of Lewis and David Dice, Daniel Hartman and D. Alfred Miller with the date 1874.

Alfred continued working at the carpenter trade until 1920 when he laid down the square, saw and hammer to engage in fruit growing and marketing. He died at the age of 76 in 1930.

After his death, a son Grover, continued operating the homestead taking care of his mother until her death in 1945, aged 91 years. Following the death of the mother, Grover and a nephew, Woodrow Wright with his family, occupied the home, and worked jointly taking care of the orchard, etc. Grover died in 1949 when it was sold to a Mr. Lehman.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller were active members in the United Brethren Church at Edenville, he serving as a trustee for a number of years. They are buried in the Saint Thomas cemetery.

They were the parents of eight children: Laura, Carrie, Howard, Maurice, Matilda, Susan, Grover and Maude

Eliza Jane, the fifth child born to Hezekiah and Susan Miller, attended the Gelwicks School during her girlhood days. Throughout her lifetime she was very much interested in music, spending considerable time in playing the organ and accordion

On May 13, 1875 she married Aaron Shatzer. They were the parents of seven boys and one daughter, Edith Pearl, who died from strangulation on a grain of corn at the age of one year. The boys were John Ervin, Norman Clayton, Levi Leibert, Walker Ransom, Clyde Melvin, Paul Raymer and Percy Aaron.

Aaron Shatzer, a native of the Nyesville - Orrstown and Culbertson area, was the fourth of twelve children born to Steven and Elizabeth Myers Shatzer, whose ancestors migrated to America from Germany arriving at Philadelphia on September 14, 1754, having imported in a ship named Barclay, Captain John Brown, from Rotterdam.

While a young man in his teens the lure of the west appealed to Aaron and accordingly he, and his brother Philip, started for the then known "far west", where they were employed as cowboys on a ranch somewhere west of the Mississippi River, probably in the panhandle of Texas or Kansas, for it was their custom to drive cattle from the range to the west bank of the Mississippi, crossing it when covered with ice during the winter months, and then on to Chicago. One of the most thrilling experiences encountered on one of the drives was, when about the middle of the river the ice began to crack and weave making it expedient and necessary to break up the herd by yelling, shooting, and using the lasso to prevent it from bunching, thereby saving themselves and the herd from certain death by drowning.

Philip remained in the west, settling in Iowa, while Aaron returned to the east and joined his elder brother Emanuel in doing carpenter work, being employed by John Sollenberger and other contractors. Their first appearance in the Edenville section was to begin work on building a house on the Colonel Dixon farm between Edenville and Saint Thomas. Emanuel became acquainted with Mary Crist, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Crist, to whom he was later married, while Eliza Jane Miller became the outstanding attraction for Aaron.

Being pleased with the location and surroundings around Edenville, Emanuel and his brother Aaron built a house in 1874 near the crossroads just east of the village and adjacent to the Gelwicks School. After marriage Emanuel and his young wife moved into this house and occupied it until 1890, when he sold it to Alfred Miller, who occupied it until his death. Emanuel then moved in with his mother-in-law, Mrs. Adam Crist, living in the log house which stood on the premises of what is known as the Elmer Shatzer property.

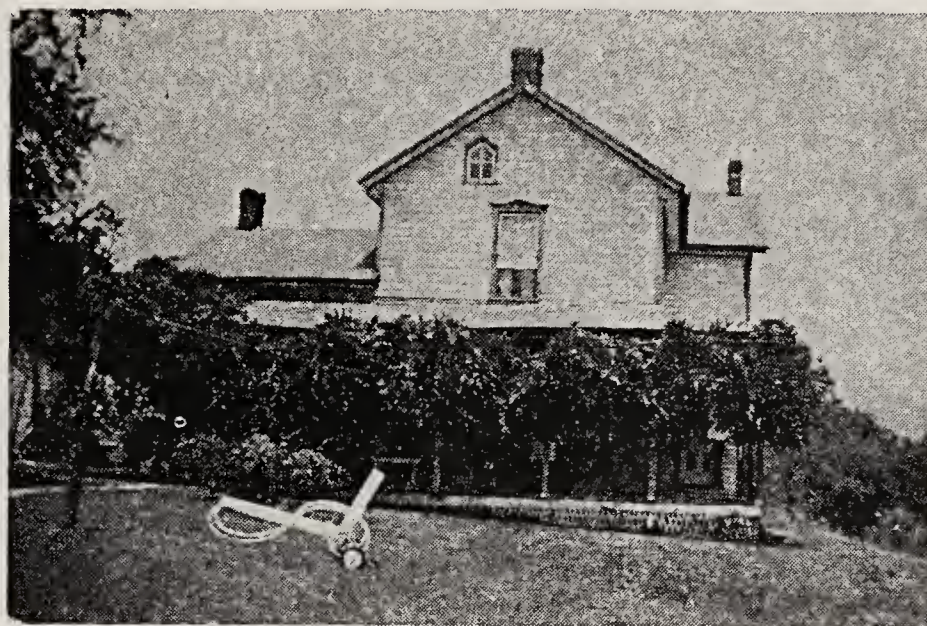

Shortly after his marriage to Eliza Jane Miller, May 13, 1875, Aaron decided to build himself a home. He, and his brother-in-law Henry Miller, jointly built a house along the Furnace Road, which was sold to James Taylor, father of John, and later became known as the Taylor home. After completion both Aaron and Henry Occupied it.

On March 26, 1883 Aaron purchased nineteen acres fifty-five perch of land from Daniel S. Hunter on which was located a log house into which he moved with his family and became their home until a number of years later when a new house and new barn were erected close to the log house, which was torn down sometime afterwards.

He also purchased seven acres and twenty-one perch of land from Hunter and Springer on April 2, 1889, on which there was also a log house - this place was commonly known as "Snow Hill". Quite a number of years from the date of purchase, this house too was torn down.

The new house became the Shatzer homestead until Aaron's death in 1899. It was later purchased by a son, Leibert, from his heirs.

He was a carpenter by trade. The later years of his life were spent on his small farm, marketing and performing odd jobs wherever needed.

Eliza, after the death of her husband, remarried James M. Zeigler, who worked as a clerk for the Cumberland Valley and Pennsylvania Railroads in the general offices at Chambersburg for a period of fifty odd years.

She died January 7, 1937 and is buried in the Edenville cemetery.

From the entrance of Aaron Shatzer upon the duties of manhood, he developed qualities of a remarkable nature. He was ambitious to make his way in life, a good workman, honest and energetic, a progressive citizen, and a thrifty farmer with a great strength of character.

The ancestral line of these Shatzers is not the same as that of Elizabeth Shatzer, daughter of Joseph Shatzer, who married D. Alfred Miller. However, both of them were prominent families of the Edenville district.

George F., sixth child born to the Millers, August 12, 1860, joined his brothers and sister in getting an education under teachers at the village school. Growing to manhood he assisted his father in fence building and was employed in various capacities by farmers in the neighborhood.

At the age of twenty he thought it would be well worth while to take advantage of the unheard of opportunities prevailing in the west. Therefore, George (or "Buffy" as he was commonly known) in company with three other young men of the community proceeded to travel westward with an overpowering ambition and high hopes of securing lucrative employment. They settled in western Ohio, where he remained for a period of approximately two years.

Upon his return to the homestead fireplace, he became infatuated with a young maiden, Emma C. Strike, daughter of Reuben Strike living in the former house located on the present Crider's Church parsonage property, whom he married December 9, 1884.

The place of abode at the time they went to housekeeping could not be definitely determined, but recollections tend to point to the fact they lived in the Crider house just east of Crider's Church, now owned and occupied by Charles Martin. While living at that place he worked with his father-in-law who was a mason by trade.

In 1887 he purchased a tract of land in Edenville from his father, Hezekiah, on which he erected the house later occupied by Minnie and Ira Kane to whom it was sold by "Buffy" after living there for several years. He then moved to the Crider farm, which later was in possession of L. L. Springer, also C. S. Martin, and at present is the Robert A. Evans orchard, just north of Edenville.

Retiring from the farm, he moved to Frey's Mill where he lived in the house shown below.

His wife, Emma, died while an occupant of this house in 1915 at the age of 51 years.

George later married Mrs. Alice Fries and was living on High Street, Chambersburg, when he died in 1918 at the age of 58 years.

They are buried in Coble's Cemetery.

Surviving them were eight children: Grant, Jennie, Arminta, Florence, Edward, Amanda, Cevera and Beulah.

David L. Miller as a young man worked on farms in the neighborhood of Edenville, and at seventeen or eighteen years of age went to Ohio with his brother George, "Steve" Shatzer and "Sam" Gushert.

Two of the adventuresome lads, "Steve and Sam", did not find conditions in the bordering state to their fancy and returned to their homes after a brief experience of what may be termed homesickness. George, however, remained in Ohio for a number of years before he returned to his home. David continued to live in that state as he became infatuated with a young maiden, Rose A. Stabner, whose fascination took a firm hold upon him and culminated, after a short acquaintanceship, in marriage at an early age.

They lived on a truck farm when first married. However, tiring of this work, they purchased and moved to 9 Burlington Avenue, Dayton, Ohio, where he secured employment at the Car shops of Barney and Smith. He worked for this firm a long period of years.

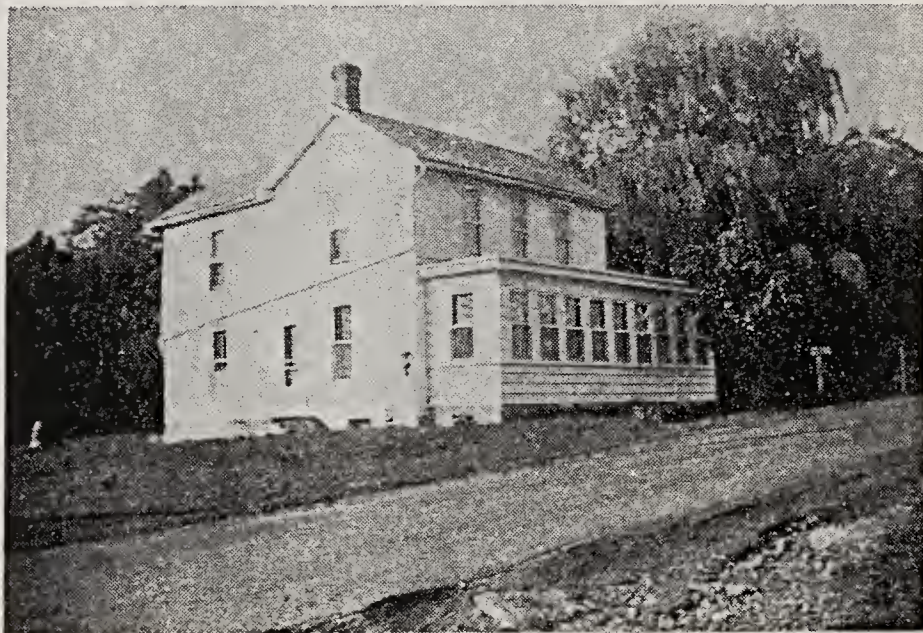

His wife, Rosa A., preceded him in death by twelve years in 1926. He died in 1938. They left no children and are both laid to rest in Willow View Cemetery, North Dayton, Ohio.

Mary E. Miller, born 1864, married Amos W. Crist, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Crist, March 29, 1881. To this union were born six children, two girls and four boys: Florence, Blanche, Raymond, Clyde, Amos and Jere.

Amos bore a reputation for uprightness, congeniality, and imbued with a pleasant disposition and generosity for others. It has been said that the neighbors could always tell when Amos was passing by with his horse and buggy as he was constantly in a jovial mood, either singing or whistling, the echoes of which would resound with a thrilling and clear melody on both chill and balmy air indicative of the spirit that was ever present within him. He was a farmer during his entire life and always enjoyed seeing the fruit of his work germinate, take root, developing into growing grain with resultant ripening thereof. His reputation was beyond reproach and he had a wide acquaintance.

They began housekeeping in the house now occupied by Luther Shatzer; later moved to Saint Thomas and worked for Colonel William Dixon on his farm; following which he lived on the property known as the Harry Goss premises, working for Henry Keefer on his farm. After the death of his father, Adam, he moved to the old homestead occupied by his mother, thence to the Houser farm (known also as the Mull place) or present Hutton fruit farm, and finally to the lower Elmer Niswander farm, where he was kicked by a horse on his right leg which became infected and gangrenous resulting in an early death, 1895, aged 41 years. Just prior to his death he purchased the James William's property at Mount Olivet, but died before he was able to occupy it.

He was a brother-in-law of Emanuel and Aaron Shatzer.

Following the death of her husband, Mrs. Crist married William Upperman. To this union were born four children: Mary Elizabeth, Ruth, John and Harry. She died in 1909 at the age of 45 years.

Both are buried in the Edenville cemetery.

Jere E. Miller, born at Edenville in 1867, attended Gelwicks School in his boyhood days. He applied himself conscientiously to his studies, and became a teacher in that school about 1885 or 1886. Following his vocation he taught school in Williamson, Pa. for a short time and then returned to the Gelwicks School to teach.

He was offered and accepted a partnership with Samuel F. Peckman, Williamson, in the warehouse business. However, approximately four years thereafter he terminated his association with Mr. Peckman to become a traveling salesman, which occupation he followed for twenty years.

In 1912 he entered politics, and being an ambitious man of excellent character and good repute, he easily won the candidacy for the office of Register and Recorder of Franklin County, which he held for four years, 1912 to 1916; appointed Deputy County Treasurer and served as such 1917 to 1925; following that acted as a Justice of the Peace in Chambersburg 1925 to 1930, at which time he entered the Insurance business and became Vice-President of the Farmers and Merchants Trust Company, serving in that capacity 1930 to 1935. He assisted in the managerial operation of that institution during the long illness of its president, Attorney William S. Hoerner. Upon the death of Mr. Hoerner, Jere became president and acted as such for seven years when he was taken by death in 1942.

He was an intelligent man, handsome in appearance and capable, using excellent judgment in all business affairs.

He married Fannie Frymier, of Williamson, June 18, 1896, and to this union were born two children, Percy E., a teacher of chemistry and physics at Girard College, Philadelphia, Pa., and Marjorie M., who married William H. Baumgartner, a Chemical Engineer Technical Service Manager, Grasselli Chemical Department, E. I. DuPont de Nemours, Wilmington, Delaware.

They went to housekeeping in Williamson and later moved to a commodious home at 53 Glen Street, Chambersburg, where he died in 1942. His wife, Fannie, preceded him in death six years, dying in 1936. Both were members of the Reformed Church and are buried in Lincoln cemetery, Chambersburg, Pa.

Anna Rebecca, tenth child of Hezekiah and Susan Miller, was born November 26, 1868, and secured her education while attending the Gelwick's school, which was the source of learning for all the children of her father and mother.

While she was yet at an early age she became interested in a young man, Emanuel L. Byers, son of Henry Byers, who had already started a lifetime career in teaching school. They were married September 15, 1885.

Emanuel began teaching at the old Stone school believed to have been the earliest school in the present Edenville section. This old log schoolhouse was located in a woods south of the property which later became known as the John Baker homestead and to the rear of the old Foreman and Byers properties. Quite a number of his students, anxious to get an education, were much older and larger in stature than himself as he was only seventeen years old at the time. During those days the boys wore heavy boots, the students were seated on wooden benches and plain boards were used as desk tops. Regardless of these trying conditions this did not deter his determination to instruct them in the fundamentals of educational curricula.

An active mind led him to supplement his preliminary education by the diligent reading of sound and choice books, and, through a tenacious memory and an ardent desire for knowledge, he became a man of extended scholarship and most varied information. Being keen and comprehensive in mind, he was capable of grasping in a masterly way almost every subject which came before him.

He had a large number of friends due to being a public spirited man, taking a great interest especially in education and schools.

His entire teaching career of forty years was spent in four schools, namely, the Old Stone school, Gelwicks, Walkers and Morning Glory.

When not teaching he was occupied in the summer months painting and performing carpenter work.

Their first residence after marriage was the house now occupied by Frank Shuman along the Apple Way.

By acquisition, through purchase April 19, 1890, they secured a parcel of land containing two acres one hundred eight perch from Elizabeth Fries on which was erected a log house in a rather deteriorated condition. They lived in this house during the time their new house was under construction. They lived in the latter house until the death of Emanuel in 1925. It is now owned and occupied by H. Ray Shatzer.

After the death of her husband, Rebecca made her home with two of her children, Mrs. Alda Shaffer and Mrs. Catherine Diffenderfer. She died in 1958 at the age of 88 years.

Surviving are six children: Pearle, Paul, Alda, Elsie, Edna and Catherine.

Both are buried in Norland cemetery, Chambersburg, Pa., and were members of the United Brethren Church, Edenville.

Minnie I. Miller, the fifth daughter of Hezekiah and Susan, was born March 23, 1875, and gained a district school education. Being an attractive young maiden, she, at an early age, drew the attention of Ira Kane, who was associated with his father in the blacksmithing business. A lasting friendship developed, culminating in their marriage by Rev. E. L. Hughes, Lemasters, Pa.

As a young man Ira learned the trade of blacksmith under the apprenticeship of his father, William Kane, who was the village blacksmith. He continued to work in that capacity after the death of his father, assuming all responsibilities and gaining an extensive reputation for the excellency of his work.

When he became the "village smithy", it was a thriving business. One could hear the blowing of the bellows on the coals placed on the forge being fanned into a flaming fire, whereon the iron or irons placed on the red coals were brought to the proper heat for shaping whether horseshoe or piece of machinery, proceeding in logical sequence to the metallic sound produced by the tap of his hammer upon the anvil. The swing of his heavy sledge could be heard as he tempered and shaped rims for buggy and wagon wheels with rhythmic frequency.

Through the advent of the automobile and various other modes of transportation, as well as tractors and propelled implements used for farming purposes, the county blacksmith has been relegated almost completely as a trade of the past.

Due to lack of trade through highly mechanized transportation facilities and equipment, he was compelled to close his place of business, resulting in his seeking employment elsewhere. He was engaged in farming for quite a number of years, and later became custodian of the Mary B. Sharpe Elementary School, Chambersburg. He also served as a Crier for the Courts at the county seat, Chambersburg.

He had a keen intellectuality and sparkling wit, distinguishing himself by fidelity, promptness, good judgment, and close attention given to the opportunities of his time.

Minnie and Ira began their marital life by going to house-keeping in a house on the L. L. Springer property immediately to the rear of the store. They moved from this place to the property subsequently occupied by Adam Shatzer on the Edenville road, leading to the Apple Way. Having purchased the property formerly owned and built by her brother George (Buffy) Miller, they removed thereto and it became their homestead for quite a number of years.

After the closing of his blacksmith shop, Ira engaged in the vocation of farming, moving to the "Jimmy" Shields farm. After several seasons they returned to their home in Edenville, later selling it to Maurice Miller; removing therefrom to the Hallet Farm near New Franklin which he farmed during the First World War years, then to the Ernest Myers farm in April, 1919.

Six years later they moved to Chambersburg where they rented a number of houses before purchasing a home at 762 Broad street. While living at this homestead, Minnie passed to the celestial home beyond all sorrows April 5, 1947. Her husband followed her in death July 28, 1949. They were laid to rest in Lincoln cemetery, Chambersburg, Pa.

Surviving were five children: Laura, Edison, Stella, Levi and Ray.

Charles Calvin Miller, born January 13, 1878, was the youngest of the Miller family, and received his education by attending the public neighborhood school.

As he grew to manhood he took advantage of every opportunity to improve himself in various lines of endeavor, and being of a genial social nature he became a favorite with his childhood playmates, especially with Laura Ellen Kissel, who lived with her parents a short distance from his home. This friendship culminated in their marriage.

Inheriting rugged health, and proving himself to be cool, clear headed, capable and self-reliant even in his boyhood days, these attributes were helpful to him in later life.

As an avocation he became a baseball pitcher of some fame, distinguishing himself as the best in the neighborhood for many many years. He led his team to victory in almost all of the games in which he was a participant. His famous drop pitch baffled most of the players who faced him at the plate.

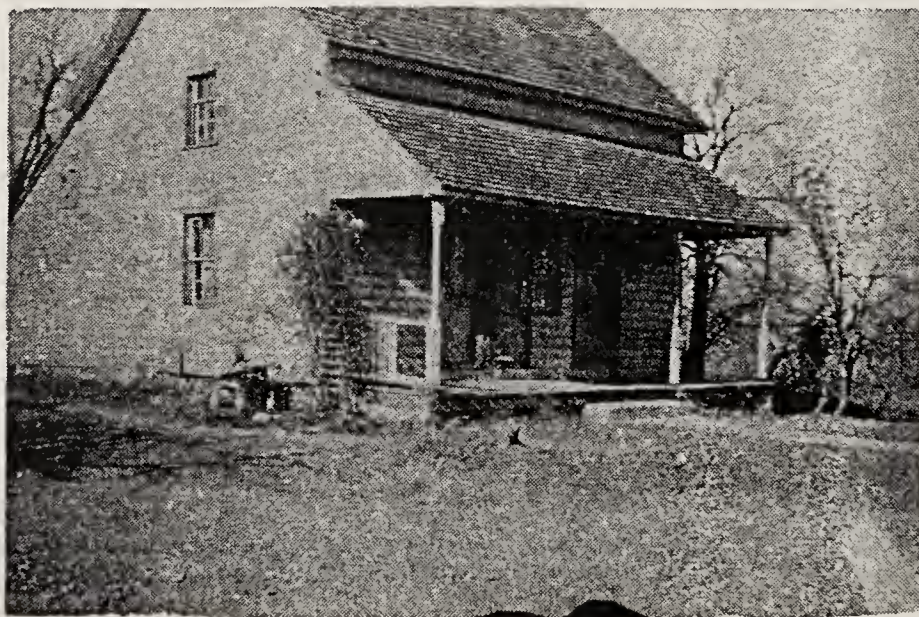

With Luther Shetron as catcher, they made a combination that could rarely be defeated. For many years the Edenville team was the squad that won championships in the then existing county league.

For a brief period he pitched ball in Class C Southern Leagues, mostly for teams in North Carolina.

"Cal", as he was commonly called, was well versed in fruit husbandry, working for the L. L. Springer estates which held vast acreages in the Edenville district. When not permanently occupied he performed odd jobs for those living in the community, marketing, etc.

He was a man of integrity and of quick comprehension, using sound and discriminating judgment, with a kindly disposition and inborn refinement of nature. When it came to story telling, he was outstanding in this respect.

Calvin purchased the old homestead from the heirs of his father and mother, Hezekiah and Susan, in 1909. It was here that he spent all his life, raising a family of three girls and one boy - Mabel, Blanche, Catherine and Walter.

His wife, Laura Ellen, died in 1933 at the age of 55 years. He attained the age of 66 years, passing to his eternal reward in 1944. He followed baseball until death.

They are buried in the Edenville cemetery.

The old Miller homestead was torn down by Charles W. Eckenrode, who erected a new house in close proximity to the old foundation, as shown below.

School days! School days!
 Dear old golden rule days!
 Reading and writing and 'rithmetic,
 Taught to the tune of a hickory stick!

All of the children of Hezekiah and Susan Miller attended this school and received an education thereat. The old school building was torn down by J. Ervin Shatzer, who erected on the plot of ground a new dwelling.

The other brick building was the Lutheran church.

As a matter of record and possible enlightenment, Jeremiah Miller, brother of Hezekiah, married Elizabeth Seaburn of Fort Loudon. In 1862 they purchased a small tract of land just west of Doylestown where they spent the remaining days of their life. They had four children: George, Annie, William and Hezekiah V., named after his uncle, and husband of Susan Beauhop Miller. This Hezekiah married Mollie Clugston.

Lamar Miller, a great grandson of Jeremiah Miller, is married to Ethel L. Walck, a daughter of L. R. Walck, operator of the Walck Hatcheries at Greencastle, Pa.

Mary Palsgrove, daughter of Louise (sister of Hezekiah Miller) married Joshua Benedict. Mr. and Mrs. Benedict were the parents of James, Emmert, Alice, Clara, Florence and Myrtle Benedict, who lived in the Markes-Lehmaster area.

* * * * *

The letter "V" used as a middle initial in quite a number of names of the Miller descendants has caused many to wonder why the designation. The letter was used in profound recognition of the high esteem in which Dr. Van Tries, a prominent, affable and renowned physician living in the Saint Thomas area, was held by his patients.

Nestled in the foothills of the Tuscaroras near the entrance of the once picturesque Franklin Furnace Gap lies the hamlet of Edenville. It is delightfully situated, watered with its clear streams, healthful with its cool breezes, and having a beautiful panoramic view of the Cumberland Valley.

It was not until after the discontinuance of operations at Franklin Furnace by L. L. Springer and D. S. Hunter (known under the firm name of Springer and Hunter) presumably in the year 1882, that the former, due to closing the company store at the furnace, proceeded to erect a store in the nearby village and transferred the contents of the former store to the latter, at which time the name Edenville was applied to the village, and a postoffice by that name was established with Mr. Springer as the first postmaster.

This office was continued until May 1934, when its patrons were transferred to rural routes. Clarence Martin was the postmaster at the time of discontinuance.

When Hezekiah Miller built his home in the year 1851 few houses comprised the small village, however, since his introduction and inclusion into the community, and the establishment of a store nearby by Mr. Springer, the village took new life and began to grow. Records reveal that no other family was as active as the Miller family in developing that specific area in the erection of new houses. Within a radius of one mile from the village Hezekiah Miller, his children and their descendants have built fifteen houses which became their homes for varied periods of time.

This street is now provided with electric street lights.

Hezekiah Miller played an important role in the origin, erection and maintenance of this church in the early days, and was an outstanding and enthusiastic lay leader.

The church was erected in 1874.

Fanny Manspeaker occupied this building while she lived in Edenville. It stood opposite the Henry Hartman store.

Do you recall her?

The residents of Edenville and vicinity were musically and athletically inclined during the earlier days as they had their own cornet band and baseball club for quite a period of years. Today a baseball club is still maintained.

FRANKLIN FURNACE

Prior to 1827 when Peter, Joseph and George Housum purchased considerable property in the Filson Gap area from Samuel Fisher, preliminary investigations were evidently made to determine whether there were iron ore deposits in sufficient quantity to warrant the erection of a furnace in that locality. The location was ideal with a beautiful stream of water nearby and the availability of an abundant supply of wood required for the burning of charcoal which was very essential in the making of pig iron. With these requisites accessible, consideration was given and action taken to proceed with the building of a furnace in the Gap, operation thereof beginning in 1828..

The name Franklin Furnace was applied to the operation, christened as such, and retained during the years of its operating existence. In fact to this day the name still applies even though only a small portion of the actual furnace facilities remain, the major portion having been dismantled during the early 1900's. Since the county of Franklin was formed in 1784 (prior to that date a part of Cumberland county) no doubt, the name of the county was applied.

The Housums operated the furnace until 1845 when it was leased to Brian, Filson and Lowe. In 1848 Benjamin and William Phraner, of Lebanon County, gained control. They operated the furnace jointly for seven years, until the former partner met his death while engaged in raising a building. William Phraner, in conjunction with his sister, continued operating the plant for several years, when the sister married Charles Molly, and William sold his interests to Peter Hollar. The firm name was then changed to Molly and Hollar. Shortly thereafter McHose, Hunter and Springer acquired control. Finally Hunter and Springer continued the operation until its ultimate discontinuance in 1886. It was during the latter partnership that considerable acreage was added to their holdings, - a total of approximately 5000 acres.

Some of the firms operating the furnace did not confine their activity to the manufacture of pig iron conclusively as they made stoves and other articles as a by-product.

The ore secured in the local area was not sufficient at all times to meet the demand, therefore, it became necessary that large quantities be secured from other operations in the county.

To this day there can still be seen traces of where some of the ore was secured. Numerous fragments of the coal hearths built in those days are still visible.

During the years of operation, the various firms built houses to accommodate the families of their employees at various places on their holdings, a number of which are still used for residential purposes. While no accurate record was maintained as to the number and location of these houses, recollections reveal there were possibly six to eight houses at Cline's Spring; ten to twelve along the street to the east of the furnace, and a number above and below the furnace. To the south across the stream flowing from the Gap were quite a cluster of houses, one of which was the Dry House. "Jim" Roof and his family lived in one of them until he moved to the house opposite the bridge at the juncture of the Apple Way and the Furnace Road. There were a number of fields between these houses and Snow Hill, on which was a log house. Houses were also built at these fields, and to the west of Snow Hill, two houses were erected at the base of the mountain, with the probability of more having been built at other locations. Today not a vestige of them is left and the fields are covered with underbrush and briars - a sad commentary, indeed, to the efforts put forth by former residents.

The writer recalls very vividly the furnace buildings which have been dismantled. It was in the 1890's that he, as a boy, in company with Clyde and Lloyd Foreman, roamed through the vacated structure. At that time there were charcoal wagons with deep bodies (making it difficult for a boy to release himself of its confines once he slid into them), logging wagons, and other equipment stored in the upper portion of the buildings. A number of hacks, with seats extending almost the length thereof on each side, covered with leather to make riding more comfortable, were also stored there. These hacks were used by L. L. Springer as a means of travel for passengers to Saint Thomas, Chambersburg, and other points.

Part of the building was used for the storage of ice cut from the pond at the intersection of the street and the circle road around the furnace. It was from this supply that ice was obtained by neighbors for making ice cream and other purposes during the summer months.

Among those employed by Franklin Furnace were quite a number from the Hezekiah Miller family, as records show that the following were working for the firm during the period 1875-1878 according to ledger accounts.

Hezekiah Miller	Alfred Miller, Son
John V. Miller, Son	David Miller, "
Henry Miller, "	Aaron Shatzer, Son-in-law

This ledger was fortunately preserved. All other furnace records, stored on the second floor of the old store building, were destroyed by fire during its occupancy by the Roach Stave Mill.

The reason for the closing of Franklin Furnace is not definitely known. It may have been due to the exorbitant or excessive expense involved in the transportation of rough ore to the plant for smelting, inasmuch as the output of cast iron in the United States for the year 1875 was 2, 023,733 gross tons, while the output of steel in this country five years later was only 1,247,335 gross tons. The process of refinement used by the Furnace operators may have been the American bloomery process which was extensively used at that time.

During the years spanned by the operation of the furnace it served as a lifeline to scores of residents in that neighborhood. The Company Store was a beehive for activity in those days as mostly all purchases and sales were made through this community enterprise. How pleasant it must have been to hear the silence broken by the hum of industrial energy emanating from the smelting of pig iron as the sound thereof reverberated through the countryside.

In recent years the original furnace site was acquired through purchase by Mrs. Betty Taylor Gilbert, who was born and reared in close proximity thereto, on which she erected a beautiful cottage. This was her home until she passed from this life when it was sold and came into possession of others.

This building, which is still standing, belonged to the Franklin Furnace property and contained the offices of that company.

FRANKLIN FURNACE (FILSON'S) GAP

The beauties of the early Franklin Furnace (formerly Filson's) Gap were innumerable and had to be seen to be appreciated. It was carpeted with a green sward of grass, clipped by sheep and cattle, shaded with towering hemlocks, edged with a stream of sparkling water leaping and tumbling over moss-covered stones, and having a healthful, invigorating cool breeze.

The Gap was known far and near for its excellent picnic and family gathering advantages. During the summer months great crowds of people congregated to enjoy an outing in this peaceful environment on Sunday afternoons, weather permitting. Numerous church services were held here, as well as festivals and ox roasts.

In the 1890's and early 1900's the Explorers club held their annual outings for several weeks at this enchanted spot. They held their own church services, led by noted clergymen; provided free entertainment for the neighborhood, and spent considerable time having a joyous relaxation from their daily tasks of life.

Included among the Club members were prominent clergymen, noted educators and business leaders. How thrilling it was to hear them burst out in song, singing old favorites such as

I've Got a Gal	Tessie
In the Good Old Summer Time	Turkey in the Straw
Nellie Gray	The Old Gray Mare
Wait Till the Sun Shines Nellie	and others.

The tents of the Explorers could be seen everywhere occupying all available space. The large dining tents were to the right and near the entrance to the Gap proper.

Today the Gap no longer presents a picturesque scene as it is scarred and marred by the activities of the Roach Stave Mill which occupied it a number of years ago. Two houses are now a part of the surroundings.

McCASHLIN VALLEY

Upon entering the Franklin Furnace Gap proper, one beholds on the western slope of McCashlin Valley, near the top of the mountain, an awesome and intriguing view of the Devil's Half Acre and the Devil's Little Finger. There must have been some great convulsion of nature in past years to produce a cataclysmic upheaval of this size and character. No one can estimate the force by which the rocks were riven and strewn in wild confusion - there to lie in speechless testimony of some great unseen power unleashed centuries ago.

A sylvan stream of marvelous beauty forms at the juncture of two rivulets in the valley, the one having its beginning in the Pine House Spring near the northern end of McCashlin Valley, the other at the southern end of the valley near Mt. Parnell. This stream passes through Franklin Furnace Gap on its way to the Potomac river.

Trails and roads can be found in this valley which were used for travel on foot - the roads principally as a means to transport articles of merchandise, goods and other commodities. One of the trails passed through Steffey's field, on which at one time were located several houses, across the mountains to Horse Valley. This trail (known as the first path) was used by many school teachers in going to and from their assignments at the Horse Valley Jefferson school. The second, or middle path, led over the mountain about midway between the first and Pine House paths, the latter leading to the top of the mountain at the northern end of McCashlin Valley. Another trail, or Hinsey path, crossed the mountain at the southern end of the Broad Top road. The northern road passed through the upper valley to the mountain top connecting with the Broad Top road, thence to the Gilbert Road descending into Bear Valley. The southern road passed through the lower valley to Mt. Parnell, Mill and Wolf Hollows - Riddles grist mill being located in the former hollow. These various trails and roads were, no doubt, used by Indians in the early days while hunting and in traveling to western tribes and villages. In the 1890's bear pits were still in use in Wolf Hollow.

During the period when the Franklin Furnace was in operation, as well as the Roach Stave Mill, these roads were used almost continuously to haul wood, charcoal and ore.

The Gap, Middle and Pine House Springs were noted for their mineral content. Many huckleberry pickers quenched their thirst at these springs.
